A Message From the Director

Protect the Gift of Life:
Safe Families, Healthy Holidays

As families prepare to celebrate Thanksgiving, Christmas, and the New Year, the holiday season presents an important opportunity to educate communities about the dangers of opioid misuse, fentanyl exposure, prescription medication safety, and overdose prevention.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and South Carolina's Just Plain Killers campaign, opioid-related overdoses remain a significant public health concern, despite encouraging declines in overdose deaths.

"During this season of giving, let us give something that money cannot buy—the opportunity for our families to live healthier, safer, and longer lives. One conversation can prevent an overdose. One act of compassion can encourage recovery. One prepared individual can save a life.

Each One Can Reach One."

While declining deaths show progress, every preventable loss still matters. May these messages help protect families, raise awareness, and save lives throughout South Carolina this holiday season.
